

Quito, City of Contrasts: Pululahua Crater, Ciudad Mitad del Mundo & Intiñán Museum

We start our day heading toward the western valley of San Antonio, where the Geobotanic Pululahua Reserve is our first stop, place to look up the volcanic domes and landscaping that belonged to the Pululahua volcano eruptions, which lush valley is considered one of the two inhabited craters in the world!; Later in "Ciudad Mitad del Mundo" project, get the opportunity to take a picture of "The World Monument", stamping feet at the equator line or amazed yourself of the "real shape of the world" as well as the time for you to stroll the representation of the city, green areas, craft shops and souvenirs of the place as much as of our country. In the other hand, "The Inti Ñan Museum" allows visitors in situ to immerse into our culture by combining original and replica of indigenous buildings and beliefs; place where you could participate on demonstrations of phenomena that occur in nature influenced by the Equator
